AUSTRALIA'S
South West

A person is kneeling on the ground, surrounded by a variety of traditional tools and artifacts. The tools include several long, curved wooden spears, a large wooden bowl, and various wooden and bone objects. The person's hand is resting on one of the tools. The background shows other people's legs and feet, suggesting a communal or market setting.

WANJU (WELCOME)

Whether you're looking to feast on the spoils of nature's pantry, taste world-class drops, spot the biggest and smallest animals on Earth, surf the perfect wave or learn about the deep cultural history within the region – discover it all on your next trip to Australia's South West.

Australia's South West is an ancient land and home to one of the world's oldest living cultures, with the Noongar Aboriginal people's connection to Boodja (Country) dating back more than 50,000 years. Traditional custodians and conservationists, the Noongar people are caretakers of Country, watching over the native flora and fauna as well as their culture's unique and rich stories, languages, ceremonies, art, song, and dance. They possess a spiritual and physical connection to the land, waters, and communities, with the protection of this and their unique tales and traditions passed down by elders for generations, hugely important to the continuation of their culture.

Visitors can easily enjoy natural beaches, beautiful vineyards, forests, caves and more, all in a single day. More than 23,000km make up the south west corner of Western Australia, with 1000 of those kilometres consisting of awe-inspiring coastline just waiting to be explored. With 24 national parks, there's plenty of nature and wildlife to see and meet, while rich soils and fertile land provide foodies with the best in fresh produce and gourmet experiences.

CARING FOR COUNTRY

The South West is host to several language groups within its regions, including the Pinjarup, Wiilman, Wadandi, Pibelman, Kaneang, Menang, and Koreng Aboriginal communities. Visitors are encouraged to respect and learn about Country through their eyes, by immersing themselves in first-nations culture up close. Experience the thrill of hearing a live didgeridoo performance and learn about dreamtime stories that Aboriginal art is based on. Taste 'bush-tucker' at a native-food demonstration, discover traditional bush medicine, or join a tour led by local tour guides that explains the vast biodiversity of the region.

Learn about the six-season calendar during your visit, still used by the Noongar people today to represent the weather changes we see across the region from January to December. Sustainability and conservation are vital to the continuation of culture. Just like the gentle coastal breezes that blow off the South West's pristine bays, we are asked to pass through Country without changing it.

Australia's South West acknowledges and pays respect to these traditional custodians of this land, Noongar Boodja, and all their Elders past, present and future. We seek the continuation of cultural, spiritual, and educational practices of Aboriginal and Indigenous Australians.

ABOUT AUSTRALIA'S SOUTH WEST

Australia's South West is located just a few hours' drive south of Western Australia's capital city, Perth, making it a great self drive destination.

Approximately 200 flights arrive into Western Australia every day, from every capital city and more than 50 destinations worldwide. East Coast visitors can also access Perth via rail.

The easiest way to travel to Australia's South West is by flying to either Perth Airport, the Busselton Margaret River Airport (With Jetstar offering direct services from Sydney and Melbourne) or the Albany Airport (via Rex).

For Perth Airport transfers, we recommend Australian Pinnacle Tours, Australian Transit Group (ATG) and South West Coachlines. Avis, Hertz, Northside Rentals and Avraa Car Hire options are available at the Busselton Margaret River Airport. Advanced bookings are essential.

MARGARET RIVER REGION

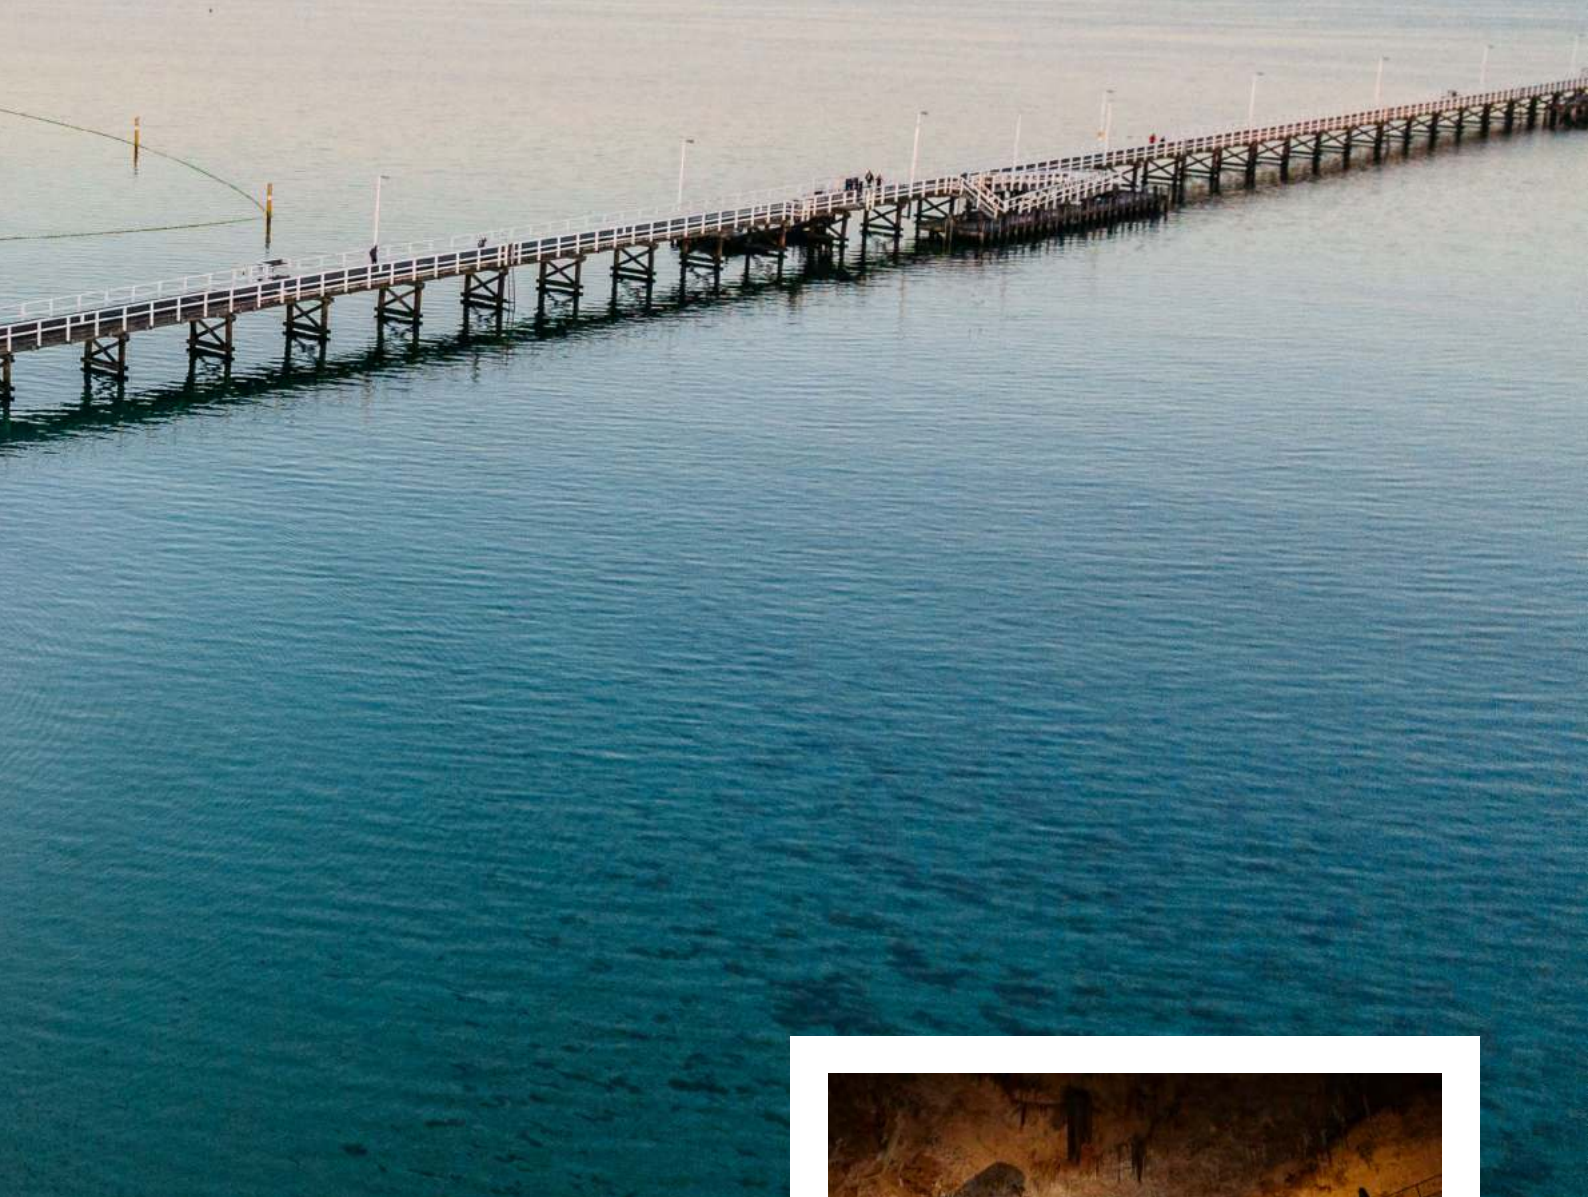

The Margaret River Region is a living and breathing embodiment of ancient geography and Wadandi song lines. Natural beauty, abundance of space, fine wine and fresh coastal air make events here the remedy to modern life.

Just three hours from Perth, in the dappled sunlight of old growth forests and the salty air of the Indian Ocean, farmers, winemakers, surfers and artists have congregated. This is a place that brings people together.

An event planner's dream, cutting-edge function spaces from large scale to small, luxury accommodation options, fine wine and provenance-driven dining perched on lakes and rolling farmland pulse through its veins.

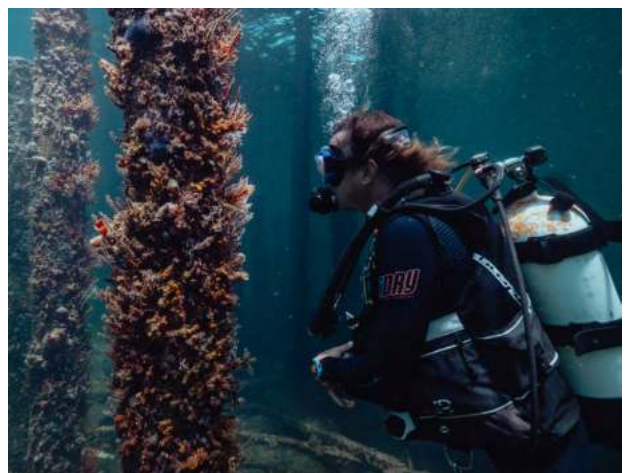

There's a cosy connectedness amongst three towns in this sub-region, each boasting dedicated conference venues at Margaret River HEART, the soon to open Saltwater Busselton, and the sprawling resorts at Pullman Bunker Bay Resort and Abbey Beach Resort.

Margaret River / Wooditjup Bilya was recognised in the global Green Destinations Top 100 Sustainable Destination Awards 2021 and has been listed as the first destination in Western Australia to receive its Ecotourism Accreditation.
